says that he recognized the party as those who were on hand.
According to his story, the men came down from the bridge by means of the pier steps and stopped at his stand, ordering some sandwiches. One of them, he says, then reached across the counter and grasped a little revolver, which he commenced to flourish, asserting that Hollingsworth was "no good."
Hollingsworth says that he hecame alarmed and tried to run away, where upon the man fixed three shots at him, one bullet taking effect in the back of the head. The four are being held, pending investigation into the case to-day.
